

Learn Different Picking Techniques

Try different type of picking techniques to be more efficient. Below is a checklist for various types of picking to help you:

✓ Discrete Order Picking - It is used by small businesses very often because they usually have smaller product catalogs and order volumes and want to reduce mistakes as much as possible

✓ Batch Picking - Instead of fulfilling one order at a time, batch picking is a process of gathering one batch of SKUs at a time. This helps save time and fulfill more orders quickly – making it ideal for SMB's with larger product and order volumes

✓ Wave Picking - Wave picking is a process that blends discrete and batch picking together. Groups of similar orders are fulfilled during scheduled time frames, or waves. The orders may have similar shipping deadlines, or could simply be near one another

✓ Zone Picking - Zone picking consists of different employees assigned to different zones within your warehouse and only picking items located in their specific zone.

